

Abstract

The present invention provides a power supply circuit including a control circuit, a battery and two switches. When an electrical apparatus having the power supply circuit of the present invention is in a power saving mode, the control circuit receives a control signal and then sends respectively two signals to the switches. Therefore, the battery directly supplies a DC signal as a power resource to reduce power consumption.